

CLASSIC T1: GAVIN TAKE – ATS Conversion 5/22/2006

HEF-DU-PONT, FRANCE, 6 June 1944: One of the responsibilities of the Airborne troops was the seizure of several key bridges following the D-Day drop. One of these bridges was at Chef-du-Pont. Gavin organized a pickup force to take care of this bridge himself. With elements of the 507th split into two groups, he marched on Chef-du-Pont by closely parallel but different routes. After sizing up the situation Gavin attacked. The combined forces flushed the Germans from the hamlet at the approaches to the bridge, but instead of giving up the Germans fell back onto the causeway with their machine guns. With the open ground denied by this heavy firepower the paratroopers were denied the bridge. ASL Scenario Design: Joe Suchar, John M ishcon
